

EDUCATION	LLB, School of Law, National and Kapodistrian University of Athens LLM and PhD, School of Law, London School of Economics and Political Sciences (LSE)
ACADEMIC POSITION / DEPARTMENT / UNIVERSITY	Assistant Professor of Criminology and Penology, School of Law, National and Kapodistrian University of Athens
RESEARCH INTERESTS	Her research interests lie mainly in the theory of punishment, the sociology of punishment, and criminal justice policy. Several of her publications focus on the systemic interactions between the individual institutions of punishment, as well as across the spheres of legislation, sentencing, and the delivery of punishment. They analyse the direct effects, and especially the unanticipated side effects, of the fragmented and unstable Greek legal framework for punishment, which is plagued by normative contradictions and a managerialist, often populist orientation. Linked to the above is her interest for the relation between the mode of organization and the aims of penal institutions. Her relevant work draws on organization theory for the analysis of the delivery of the community service order, as well as the privatization of prisons. Moreover, she has been systematically engaged with the analysis and critique of James Q. Wilson's work on "broken windows" and the "policy of zero tolerance" towards disorderly behaviour, and its neo-conservative underpinnings. Central amongst her present interests is the exploration of the normative foundations of penal moderation in relation to the severity of sentences and the regime of their enforcement.
INDICATIVE PUBLICATIONS	• Private prisons and the limits of challenging the role of the State, Poinika Chronika, vol. 43, 1993, pp. 5 sq. • The monetary conversion and its variants, Series Poinika No. 55, Ant. N. Sakkoulas, Athens-Komotini 1998. • Neo-Conservative Criminology, in: E. McLaughlin & J. Muncie (eds.), SAGE Dictionary of Criminology, SAGE Publications, London, 2001, pp. 182 sq. • Neoconservatism and the policy of zero tolerance. A critical perspective of the views of James Q. Wilson, Ant. N. Sakkoulas, Athens-Komotini 2006 • Pathology of the current penalty system of the Penal Code. Thoughts and proposals for a radical revision in the context of drafting the new Penal Code, Poinika Chronika, Vol. 56, 2006, pp. 590 sq. • The adequacy of the grounds for criminalizing drug use, in: I. Karakostas, M. Malliori, K. Soldatos, A. Koutsouradis (eds.), Psychiatry and Law – Volume II. Use of addictive substances, Ant. N. Sakkoulas Publications, Athens-Komotini, 2008, pp. 33 sq. • Proposals for a new system of penalties, Poinika Chronika, Vol. 58, 2008, pp. 683 sq.

	• Models of criminal justice. Theses and antitheses, in A. Giotopoulou-Marangopoulou (ed.), Criminology in the face of contemporary challenges. Anniversary conference for the thirty years of the Hellenic Society of Criminology, Nomiki Vivliothiki, Athens, 2011, pp. 187 sq. • The strategy of the indirect reduction of sentences: Its exhaustion, and the need for a paradigm shift, The Art of Crime, November 2016, https://theartofcrime.gr/november-2016/ • The prison system and the system of punishment of the new Penal Code: An endeavor to reach a healthy relationship, Poinika Chronika, vol. 69, 2019, pp. 409 sq. • The Potentially Perverse Effects of Front- and Back-Door Penal Policies, in: Charis Papacharalampous (ed.), The Aims of Punishment. Theoretical, International, and Law Comparative Approaches, Sakkoulas-Nomos Verlag, 2020. • The role of emotions in the context of a moderate criminal policy, in: M. Kaiafa-Gkbandi (Series Director), The strengthening of the rule of law in European legal systems and in Greece, Nomiki Vivliothiki, Athens, 2023, pp. 161 sq. • The Penal Code of 2019 and its successive amendments up to Law 5090/2024: A critical narrative analysis of the double paradigm shift in Greek criminal law, Poinika Chronika, 2024/3 (March), pp. 161 sq. • Private prisons. Is there anything beyond profit-driven punitiveness?, Poinika Chronika, 2025/3 (March), p. 161 sq.
Indicative Research Activities (current and past)	• Director, Center of Criminal and Criminological Research, Department of Penal Sciences (2018-2025) • Editor, The Art of Crime (https://theartofcrime.gr), online journal of the Center of Criminal and Criminological Research • Elected Member of the Board of Directors, Center for the Treatment of Addicted Individuals (KETHEA) • President and Member of the Central Scientific Council of Prisons (KESF) • Deputy President of the Central Scientific Council for Combating Victimization and Juvenile Delinquency (KESATHEA) • Member of legislative drafting committees for the revision of the Penal Code and the Penitentiary Code
COURSES TAUGHT	Undergraduate courses • Penology-Prisons • Criminology • Juvenile Justice • Penology (ERASMUS) Postgraduate courses • Theory of Punishment • Theoretical Criminology • Criminal Justice Policy • Addictions